

Keeping Students Connected

Communication is one of the most essential tools in building your school community. Allowing students to log into their individual FastDirect student account encourages independence and responsibility in a secure technology environment.

Advantages for students who log into FastDirect:

FDmail = Independence

Allowing a student to message a teacher and attach homework or assignments encourages their involvement in their education and reinforces the school's interest in supporting their students.

Grades = Motivation

An overall look at a GradeBook and ReportCard grades will add perspective to a student's view of their performance and inspire them to keep up the hard work or strive to show their potential.

Assignment Calendar = Time Management

Keeping track of homework, tests, projects and papers can be daunting for any parent and student. When a student is given the opportunity to help track this information, everyone benefits.

BulletinBoards & Calendars = Accountability

Knowing when a project will be started or remembering to pack a lunch for the class field trip will be easy when students have access to their teachers' BulletinBoards and Calendars. The more information a teacher posts means students will have fewer excuses for being unprepared.

Links = Responsibility

There's no end to the amount of resources and references a teacher can provide their students in Links. Furthermore, the links that a teacher creates will be teacher-approved and will assure that the student is only viewing the correct and safe information.
